

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

According to the present invention there is provided a composition as obtained from a melt comprising esterified starch, preferably having a degree of substitution of at least about 1.5, and preferably an amylose content of at least about 50% by weight with respect to that of the starch, and a linear polyester. The invention further provides the composition in the form of a melt or when shaped into articles.